Bugging Device Found in Studio

Metropolitan police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation are investigating the discovery of an electronic eavesdropping device in the newsroom ceiling of the Mutual Broadcasting System offices at the World Center Building, 918 16th Street NW.

Police said yesterday that the "bug" was discovered around 5 p.m. Saturday by an electrician who was working near the desk of Del Sherburt, a Mutual national news broadcaster. The "bug", according to police, was found implanted in the ceiling.
