

Dear Sarah Kaplan,

The reverse side explains the ~~same~~ delay in responding to your kind and thoughtful note of the 7th. My physical activity remains limited and first priority is getting out the books. With only two (mias) of us if they every stacked up....

I would like to meet the man I'd rather describe as the novelist than the author. There is a difference between writing fiction and non-fiction.. Different attitudes, different workings of the mind.

There is a book that could make a movie in our farming and its end. I am too close, too personally involved, to do it the way it should be done, lightly.

We are only a little more than an hour from Washington at rush hour. But my one effort to drive there, a week ago today, left me exhausted for 3 days. I can travel by car when I can keep my legs elevated (as now, which makes my bad typing worse) but I am not yet mobile enough to offer to go to Georgetown.

I do appreciate your thoughtfulness

And virtually nothing discourages me!

Sincerely, Harold Weisberg 12/22/75

Mr. Harold Weisberg -

Your story by Kathy Sawyer, Wash. Post Weekly, 12/4/75 is not too unfamiliar. We can do, but can't get paid proportionately. Please don't be discouraged - in G-d we trust?

If anyone disturbs my chickens and put me out of business I'd do something!!
You are entitled to freedom etc.
for the pursuit of happiness.

I am forwarding the newspaper article to our Rabbi who knows Herman Wolk the author. Would you think as a collaborator,
he might be able to help
put you in a paying category?

-2-

He lives in Georgetown.
Somehow I feel you might be profitable for each other.
Like I mentioned - your story isn't unfamiliar.
Seems we have to do it all by ourself = research, write, sell and pay = but it works better if we work as a team & (In addition to you god wife).? Sincerely,

Sarah Kaplan
