Dear Mr. Wilson,

Mr. Sol Lewman, of Hamden, Conn. suggests I send you this review copy of WHITEASH: Should you review it, I hope you can give our address and the price, for many people write us and, with a private printing, assume the book is not available in bookstores. Actually, it is a best-seller in NYC right now. All the major wholesalers are selling it like mad. The first 5,000 are gone. All that are bound of the 5,000 now at the printer's, 1500, are also sold, and orders await the binding!

It is all quite exciting and encouraging, especially because the press has had a remarkable change in appetite, preferring day-before-yesterday's unrefrigerated milk to meat. I'm not getting the reviews (of course, I am getting some, including plagiarization) and the papers seem to find it convenient to avoid mention. But people know of the book and are sending it out.

We've been getting orders from Canadians who hear of the book or hear me on it over US radio stations.

The printer extended us credit on this, and we have almost entirely paid off the first printing. There was a limited edition last year to establish my rights. This is the first book on the subject and as of today the only definitive book. It was completed in mid-February 1965.

All the pictures and charts are, to the best of my knowledge, public domain, except the double-truck AP photo, which they own. I bought the one-time use only.

I think you can get quite an exciting story from just the documentation on the autopsy.

If you do review, would you please send us some copies? And if you have any questions, ask away.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
