

WxPost-CIA: When there was no apparent need for the editing, this sentence was deleted from the end of the fourth from the last paragraph of the Anderson column of 1/9/75: "Information about people was cranked into computers, which could produce detailed life histories at the push of a button." Were there space problems, it does seem odd that this particular sentence would be deleted. That was the new item in the continuing CIA domestic story. Even if this is a minor point, it is part of so many such incidents I note it. From downplays to covering ups to editorials it is consistent. EW 1/11/75