Service Groups Rebut Charges of CIA Ties

The International Secretithe Central Intelligence tariat for Volunteer Service, Agency. an organization financed by 10 governments and various American foundations, and the Asian Foundation, a prithe Secretariat's chief, former Peace Corps general counsel, William A. Delano, denied without qualification
an Indian legislator's unsupvate American philanthropy, ported charge that he "is a top yesterday rebutted charges CIA official actively connect-that they were associated with the Peace Corps and other espionage networks."

The legislator was criticizing his own government for permitting the Secretariat to hold a conference, starting March 29 in New Delhi, on the volunteer service programs in some 50 countries which it coordinates.

Not only are the Secre-tariat's budget and staff both public and international, said Delano, but none of its foundation contributors (Ford, Rockefeller) has been linked to the CIA. Its headquarters is at 1000 16th st. nw.

The Asia Foundation, responding to the recent disclo-sures of CIA penetration of private lorganizations that private abroad, issued a formal statement from its San Francisco office.

Acknowledging (but not listing) past contributions from foundations named as CIA conduits, it said these con-tributions "in no way affected the Foundation's policies and programs." Funds are no longer accepted from these sources, a spokesman added, al-though "open" Government grants for international education and development are accepted.

The Foundation's Asian and American employes "have devoted themselves exclusively to the Foundation's work," said the statement.
