Dear Steve.

Your check and brief note strived today. You seem to have ignored my letter, with other possible charges. On you please address yourself to this?

The device did sweit me in her Orleans. Louis had opened it and thrown the insurance record away. This is unfortunate, for it did not work at all and I could not use it. Toy, did I need at! Toy bad, through no one's fault. I left it these for repair. Itwas properly packaged, too. The day I left I was given the newer version of the same thing. Brand new. Also inoperative:

We have just avoided a major disaster the details of which I cannot now communicate to you. Maggie has a pretty good, if incomplete, idea of what was going on. With the best of intent, you out there were part of it. Some of you may have had other intent, as Vince Salandria seems convinced (I am not). Magardless of intent, the fact is beyond doubt. If the investigation is not already wracked beyond hope it is close to that point. All the stuff you all were so busily engaged in was diversionary, having nothing to do with the case and probably in only a very few instances with anything. All of this enarmous effort, the great expenditure of time and resources, was denied the Shaw case, which now thereby suffers greatly.

Now there is nothing we can do about this. I'm must be deeply hurt by all of it, and I avoide any mention of this to him when I was there, as I presume others also did. I have reason to believe everyone cushioned his feelings.

What can still be done should be, as thoroughly and rapidly as possible. One of these things have already asked you for. It is a complete memo on "The Plot", "Hepburn" and everything that relates, especially all those people you saw, what they said, their appearances, apparent connections, addresses—everything. I cannot tell you why now, but your lest letter indicates a usfficient awareness of what could be here involved. Do not tell Jaffe, for he is too deeply involved, to close to be believe me, for be already been able to establish certain connections beyond any question at all.

if you have any doubts about this, please consult with Maggie immediately. If you do not do this, without telegraphing to anyone at all aside from her, the prospects of your not deappy regretting it are alim. And I will be unit you.

There is one other thing you should do. If it was not asked of you it was to have been. You should immediately return your credentials to Jim with a nice note saying you do it to avoid any possibility of embarrassing him, that it does not mean you will not continue to do wastever you can, etc. You need them only for your vanity, not for work. There should be none in any unofficial hands, for the embarrassment already happened, and there will be more. Again, if you have any question, sheak to wasgie. Jaffe had already agreed it was the wisest thing to do when Vince so brutishly mammadamathamathamatham and wrongly attacked him. I do not believe what Vince said and we had it hot and heavy over that incident. However, I must acknowledge the effect is the same. In addition, he turned up a tremanduous amount of money that could have been used for worthwhile purposes.

I expect to return to N.O. before the trial and I do expect the trial to come off close to schedule this time. I do not look Yorward to it.

Sincerely,
