Justice Department Issues Curbs To Bar Crimes by F.B.I. Informers

By JOHN M. CREWDSON

Special to The New York Tim

WASHINGTON, Jan. Department today issued formal adminis- tigate United States citizens suspected trative guidelines designed to preventt future abusive and illegal acts on the part of undercover informers controlled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and to balance the use of informers against the balance the use of informers against the possibility that their presence might stifle free speech and association.

The guidelines, which mark the first effort ever by the Justice Department to reparting guidelines bearing on other areas of the bureau's operations, but the suidelines are not likely to become public reau's use of informers, would prohibit guidelines are not likely to become public many of the abuses uncovered by Congressional and other investigators over later this month.

the past two years.

Among other things, the standards bar the bureau's informers from participating in or provoking violence or other criminal in or provoking violence or other criminal acts, from employing unlawful techniques, such as burgiaries, in gathering information and from compromising a Federal prosecution of individuals on whom they have provided information. The standards made public today, which in some cases reflect internal bureau regulations in existence but which lend to them the additional force of the Justice Department's imprimatur, represent the Department's imprimatur, represent the latest step in Attorney General Edward H. Levi's efforts to halt some of the bureau's discredited investigative practices.

Estimate of 6,650 Informers

According to the best recent estimates, the bureau has about 650 informers as-signed to subversive, or "security," investigations, and another 6,000 who report to it on various criminal activities. Most, but not all, of them are paid salaries that range from a few to several hundred dollars a month, depending on the informa-tion they provide.

5-The Justice tions under which the bureau could inves-of subversive activities.

These guidelines stipulated the kinds of investigations in which present informers could be used and new ones recruited

'Should B Carefully Limited'

In a preface to today's guidelines, Mr Levi declared that the bureau's use of informers "should be carefully limited," because their reliability and motivation were sometimes questionable and their presence necessariy involved "an element of decption and intrusion into the priva-cy of individuals."

Mr. Levi reiterated one of the internal bureau regulations put into effect by Mr. Kelley some months ago, that burau informants be prohibited from undertaking any act that F.B.I. agents themselves were barred from carrying out.

But he added an important new dimension in asserting that the bureau must accept "a special responsibility" for the activities of one of its informers in cases where "he has received, or reasonably thinks he has received, encouragement or direction for that activity from the

The provision that the bureau instruct its informers "to try to discourage" vio-lenc by those on whom thy are reporting, and not to participate in such vio-lence if they are unsuccessful in prevent-Mr. Levi, who has accorded considerable praise to Clarence M. Kelley, the current bureau Director, for his cooperation in instituting the reforms, issued guidelines last March that limited the conditional contracts sharply with the experience of Gary Thomas Rowe, who infiltrated the Ku Klux Klan for the bureau in the mid-1960's.