P.S. 2 to Mr. Shea, 3/17.78

Also in today's sail is the enclosed copy of a New York Times 3/15/76 story beaded "F.B.I. Is Destroying Grisinal Files on Cases Closed for Five Years."

I am appealing the destruction of any files that can possibly include records I requested so long ago, records the existence of which I have called to the Department's attention over a long period of time.

In this connection I call to your attention the first three paragraphs in particular. They describe a situation that fits the records that have been withheld from me. Criminal suspicions were fabricated to provide a clock of legitimacy.

I do hope you will take steps to assure that there are no destructions until all these matters are resolved.

F.B.I. Is Destroying Criminal Files. On Gases Closed for Five Years

By ANTHONY MARRO 1 Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, March 14—The Federal of the bureau, and had decided to purge Bureau of Investigation, over the objectits criminal files as well. tions of some of its agents but with the consent of the National Archives, has start all over again," he predicted. "It begun to destroy the inactive criminal will be like 1957. There'll be another files in its field offices of cases that have Apalachin and nobody will know who been closed for five years.

bureau's executive conference about four private residence in upstate Apalachin, months ago, calls for the destruction of N.Y., in 1957. all criminal files in the 59 field offices, not considered a threat to "national se- of its files were "burned before they're curity" and the subject does not have nead," rather than walting five years.

Any fcivil litigation pending against the Mr. Awe said that because only the Government: .

James Awe, the F.B.I. agent who supervises the management of its 7,000 file cabinets of records, said today that material of substance would still be on file at bureau headquarters here in Washington and that most of the material to be destroyed would be "unfounded allega-tions that never resulted in Federal viola-tions" that were proved.

the burgau's monitoring of criminal or-ganizations could be lost too

"Five years from now, we'll have to they are," His reference was to a meeting The policy, which was approved by the of affeged organized crime figures at a

Others in the bureau disagree, and one providing that the case has been closed senior official suggested privately that for five years, the subject of the file is the bureau might be better off if many > field office files would be destroyed there would still be records at headquarters that would contain summaries of any "substantive" information that was in them. them.

> Several bureau sources said that a rea-son for the decision was that a number of persons had begun civil suits against the Government after using requests under the Freedom of Information Act to obtain information that the bureau had

Overreaction is Seen

A number of agents said privately, "We're trying to manage these files; and however, that agents working on organized crime cases were concerned that in formation they considered important to the bureau's monitoring of crime to the bureau had on file on them. "Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision. We're trying to manage these files; and it becomes a matter of cost effective-new formation that the bureau had on file on them. "Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision."

Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision. "We're trying to manage these files; and it is becomes a matter of cost effective-new more a routine management decision."

The company of the bureau had on file on them. "Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision."

The company of the bureau had on file on them. "Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision."

The company of the bureau had on file on them. "Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision."

The company of the bureau had on file on them. "Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision."

The company of the company of the bureau had on file on them. "Mr. Awe, however, said that it was more a routine management decision."

The company of the burgau's monitoring of criminal organizations could be lost to the may more."

We're retreating full blast," said one, who did not want to be quoted by name. He suggested that the bureau had acted properly in deciding to limit its so-called "internal security" investigations, which often focused on fringe political groups, but then had "overreacted" to criticism but then had "overreacted" to criticism agent. The state of the s