

Governor Visits DA's Son

Friend Calls on Jasper

By CHRIS SHEAROUSE

There was a touching moment today at Baptist Hospital when the governor of Louisiana brought a little sunshine into the life of a 10-year-old boy who suffered a cerebral hemorrhage over the weekend.

Jasper Garrison, tow-haired son of District Attorney Jim Garrison, fell from his bicycle Friday afternoon and Saturday morning was found to have cerebral bleeding.

"At first it looked bad—the doctor said he wouldn't have given two cents for his chances," said the boy's mother. "But now he has had some tests that proved out normal and he seems to be doing all right.

YOUNG JASPER is a great admirer of the governor, so Garrison approached the governor today and asked if McKeithen would autograph a football for the youngster.

McKeithen said he would do better than that, he would visit the boy personally.

So the governor and Garrison, who was hobbling around with a cane because of his recent back surgery, went to the hospital where McKeithen autographed the message to the football and made a few apologies about the crude haircut he gave himself while in the hospital.

"But he has Jim's personality," said Mrs. Garrison.

"Jasper can't believe the Chiefs won the Super Bowl," his father reported, adding that the lad is quite a pro fan. "He knows more about football than I do."

Garrison promised the youngster he will bring in a color television set for the boy to watch the Pro Bowl game Sunday, if Jasper feels up to it.

Jasper who according to his mother has lots of girlfriends (mostly nurses) in the hospital, said things are kind of blurry for him still.

His doctor says he is in fair condition and the outlook is good.

Navy to Retire Carrier Hornet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy announced today it will retire the USS Hornet, the fourth antisubmarine warfare carrier to be ordered into mothballs in the last five months.

Spokesmen said the Hornet is being inactivated mainly because of her age. The ship marked its 26th year of service last Nov. 29.
