General Ramsey Clark called for the firing of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover before a talk here Friday night.

Clark, speaking at a press conference prior to the annual dinner of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action, said Hoover should be replaced because "there has been too much sameness in the bureau and failure to include men of varied backgrounds."

"If (the FBI) has become set in ideology, and that's not good," he said.

Hoover, he added, has rendered "very effective and very valuable service" but it has been at least a decade since the FBI has been "really effective."

Commenting on FBI surveillance of civilian activity, Clark said such spying is "incompatible with a free society." But he was quick to add that he did not condone the theft of the records from the Media office of the FBI.

"But if that's the only way we can find out what they're doing," he said, "it's too late already."

Clark said it was Congress' responsibility to halt such surveillance.

"The representatives of the people have a responsibility to investigate and set guidelines" for the FBI, he explained.

More than 500 persons attended the dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford. Included in the group were three Democratic mayoral candidates, Rep. William Green, State Rep. Hardy Williams and former City Councilman David Cohen. Former Police Commissioner Frank L. Rizzo was not present.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp told the crowd he has written to the state's Congressional delegation asking them to support a r i o u s legislative plan that would reroute funds planned for the defuncted super-sonic transport project into mass transit systems.

The governor also promised to make good on his campaign pledges and "to turn Pennsylvania government into a responsible and impassionate instrument of human progress."
