

Bond Hits 'Rantings' Of Agnew and Hoover

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. Sept. 11 (AP)—Julian Bond, the only black member of the Georgia legislature said today that black Americans may have to "resort to force" if Vice President Spiro Agnew and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover continue their "rantings."

"If the provisions of the inane Washington D.C., no-knock law are any indication of what is in store for us in the future, and if the gate-mouthed Maryland farmer who presides over the Senate is to continue his rantings in concert with the little tyrant who runs the FBI," Bond told the 12th annual summer conference of the Philadelphia Bar Association, "then we must prepare for a time of trouble."

"We live and work in situations provided for by the majority, not by us," he said. "We exist at the sufferance of the American majority, and the evidence is mounting that that existence itself may soon be called into question."

"The traditional coalitions of black people, labor and the more enlightened church leadership have failed in bringing about the beloved society that was the dream of the early 1960s."

"The hoped-for coalition with white college students has not materialized as this group has shown more interest in music, drugs, the romance of revolution and self-enforced poverty than in the human problems which effect every black person in this country."
