Dear Jen.

11/14/74

I wrote you yesterday afternoon and opened the envelope this merning to add what I think may interest you because of your own efforts in the past and because of the changes I'll report.

You may recall my strong complaint to Rolling Stone when you told me they had commissioned Report Agiser to be a picar on conspiracy theories of the assassinations. Well, he has independently concluded exactly what I told Rolling Stone and is doing another kind of piece. His attitude it different than the concept of the original story plan. I don't know what kind of story he will write but the one with which Relling Stone began scene clearly not to be it.

We was here until I a.m. We talked epenly with two precenditions: he tape so he could be certain and I get the tapes when he is finished; and he not use anything I may about anyone else without my reading and agreeing. I teld him I want to may nothing in public about others with whom I disagree but at the same time I feel the obligation to give a writer an epinion he can then decide about on his own, independently.

It is not an easy position to be in because all the noise comes from those who have nothing but noise. And because dishonestly characterizes the noisy ones. The ascent of literary thievery is great but the consequences are not nearly as hartful as the misses by the thiswes of what they noither understand nor care to. They want sensation. On the subject of assassinations Ramparts, which did so well on so many other subjects, was never able to do anything besides steal except manufacture. Fiction.

Anyway, kniser and I get along well. We is now at the point you were menths ago, believing that Relling Stone should distribute the new book. We also wants to review it. And, interestingly, when he went to the Archives and asked to see some declassified material, the first thing he was shown is this transcript. You may recall I told you it was given to me for me to use because there could be benefits to some in trouble from that use and that I'd write in a manner to minimize or eliminate this. The letter to me on the declassification is not filed with the transcript.

Legar Johnson Kaiser the besk the day sefere. The printer was supposed to deliver the sepies to me again yesterday but did not. Kaiser finds the construction of the besk interesting. It is different. Of course he also finds some of the content interesting, too.

If these editors to when you speke menths ago had not been close-minded semething might have come of this. If it does now it still will help but it will be late. However, Kaiser and I talked little about the book. Herely a few stories on what preceded giving me the transcript. He'll get a copy from Lesar today.

While at the time year efforts and my rather strong letter seem to have done no good, it now appears that both did. At least in making those people aware of the pessibilities of minimforming many people by a bad approach, a bad concept. This is what I wanted not to happen and I'm now satisfied it wen't. I don't know and didn't ask what he intends instead. I responded, not trying to direct his questioning. As when I interview, it was more of a conversation than an interview. So, I hope he is botter prepared for responsible writing. I think he intends it.

Thanks and lest.
