Dear Mr. Lesansky,

Overwhelming, and I do appreciate it.

I think you can get enough from PHOTOGRAPHIC WHITEWASH for your class. I also think it will be "fresh", for few people have ever heard of the book or its contents. Is not the failure of the press to mention it, save for the initial story in the New York Times, also suppression?

There remains, in my thinking, another kind of suppression approach. I believe that the withholding of any data is unacceptable. The protection of stoolies is not as important as learning the truth. What little there is that might defame people (and God how much of that is not restricted in any way-even published) can be edited if necessary. However, someone not suffering the special kinds of official blindness should be able to see it. I believe most of the suppression is to protect the gov't.

Again thanks, See you when possible.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Mr. Weisberg:

I received your books in the mail yesterday with, what might be said at the very least, great eagerness and alacrity. Your kindness in forwarding those books to me at your own expense, and on the same day that we had our conversation, is most deeply appreciated. In regard to our telephone conversation, may I first say that it was, without question, one of the most stimulating and thought-provoking discussions I have ever had in my life. I certainly do not want to sound overly exuberant to the point of incredulity, but I am most sincere in these sentiments of praise. I am still excited at having talked to you personally, and the experience will not soon be forgotten.

Your books are, indeed, a memorable and superb achievement. As I read your books today, on the eve of my birthday, the full significance of what is unanswered and unresolved concerning the true nature of the President's assassination is made even more vivid. I would like to express both my gratitude for and encouragement to your valuable and exhaustive research. We must have the truth! I feel so strongly on this point that I am preparing a class assignment on the suppression of assassination evidence. I would appreciate greatly any of your ideas on how to present a fresh approach to my class in public speaking on this subject. Your books are providing me with invaluable information in this regard.

I have enclosed a check for $6.50 to cover payment of the books. I soon will be purchasing Whitewash I and II from you for my library. In order to read them I have had to borrow the books from other sources, and, in fact, I have not completed reading the books to my satisfaction.

My desire to personally meet you, Mr. Weisberg, is nothing less than overwhelming. You said at the time of our conversation that we could not meet sooner than in six weeks. I simply cannot wait for the day to arrive! The deep privilege of such a meeting with you is beyond expression. I hope we can keep in touch up until that long-awaited (for me, at least) day. If it is agreeable with you, I will be privileged to contact you by telephone or letter during the first week in April concerning a personal meeting with you. I look forward to such a meeting very, very much. It has been a pleasure to communicate with you, and I say again how anxious I am to meet you.

Give my best wishes to your wife for a rapid recovery, and please, do not work too hard.

Very sincerely yours,

Henry R. Lesansky
