Would you rather go to Calatine or by bus?

The question is not whether that one group or the other Oswald in New Orleans makes clear-cleared than Liebeler, when it comes to do that, but whether the activity continued. That it did. I find no mention in your story quoting him of the continued use of that building by the same people, by Guy Maristan, who was very much in on it (and whose name Liebeler kept out of the evidence) of how the mail was delivered in that building and who would have gotten any mail addressed to Oswald at 544 Camp St.

Liebeler runs the animal game, and he is in it. The concluding paragraph of your story reads:

"if Weisberg thinks that any one of member of the New Orleans Investigation Committee had any part in a conspiracy, it is an absolute fantasy," Liebeler said.

Is there any reason to presume that I so think I wrote 200,000 in a book he said he finds painful. There we are in accord; if I think it should pain him, for it is about his own performance). Can he quote something even indicating I held this belief. I have made many speeches. Is there anything in any one to justify this cheap device, so typical of his performance, official and unofficial. The fact is, though he makes me sound like I was wrong, I have made the opposite explicit

It was, by the way, but a block from the Kelly Coffee Co., where Oswald worked, long from the Crescent City Garage, where he hung out and where the FBI and Secret Service garaged their cars. Then, if this gross deception that was practiced on the Committee does not make you wonder what kind of a job Liebeler did, let me refer you to the also-enclosed page from a Secret Service report, which shows that the arrangement for the Cuban use of the office at 544 Camp St.,

same buildings as the ORG, yet the CIA was the main force behind the ORG.

Unfortunately, this hole in the original report was filled by the been officially said that Oswald was the lone and unaided assassin. It was also Liebler talks about everything that I did not say, says nothing responsive to what I did. Perhaps, like the new math and the new morality, this is the new way of teaching law at the University of California. It is the not new manner of the Warren Report that I have so thoroughly exposed in my four published books. (Lieber figures prominently in three, as he earned. Until now he has failed to mention my name or in any way draw any attention to my books, which illustrates his handling of other evidence.) It is typical of Lieber's lack of response.

Please excuse the haste. I got the paper only today.

If I am invited to speak, what I hope I'll do is to play excerpts of his as saying- and more. I'm keeping a few more for you!

It is a year and a half since Lieber got my first book, a year since he got my second. If he had a single word to say, he has not said it to me, as challenged, nor has he made it known to me. Perhaps the eyes that became so practiced at the Warren Report but ~~XXXXXXXXXXXX~~ "Meme, Meme, Takel" to his mind.
