Dear Mr. Lynn,

Perhaps you recall the note you sent me on the left-hand side of your Texas Bank & Trust check, perhaps you do not. I hope you do. It reads, "I should like to talk to you if you are ever in Texas. The book is extremely interesting, since I personally know some of the persons named".

I forgot your name hence was not able to get in touch with you when I was, briefly, in Dallas the end of last year. I stumbled on your note just now and write immediately. Unfortunately, I do not anticipate being in Dallas again in the foreseeable future. I'd like very much to be. In the time I was there, everyone I sought to speak to did see me and only two of three feared permitting me to tape record the interview (which is for purposes of assuring accuracy and totality of recall not otherwise possible). People on all levels, including officials, were quite helpful.

I am writing to assure you that the fear people once held of being in any way involved in passing on information clearly is unwarranted and to ask you please to tell me what you can, those you know or knew and what. If you have any misgivings, I suggest you register what you send, return receipt requested, which will assure you what you send did reach me (as I will thereafter be writing). I will not connect you with anything in any way.

Because we now know so much more than we earlier did, what you have may be of more meaning now than it would have then.

I do look forward to hearing from you and thank you for any help you can provide.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

I should like to talk to you
