Manchester Book Dulls RFK Star

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J., March 25
Senator Robert Kennedy's political appeal has suffered a decline in recent weeks.

Kennedy began the new year riding a crest of popularity that built up steadily during 1966 as President Johnson's popularity ebbed. In fact, Kennedy had greater political appeal for all voters than did the President.

Now the situation is reversed and Mr. Johnson is the more popular with all voters of the nation.

Kennedy's decline in political appeal can be laid in large part to the controversy over publication of the book, Death of a President, and to a lesser extent to Kennedy's running battle with the Administration over Vietnam policies.

This question was asked of all persons interviewed in the survey:

"Suppose the choice for President in the Democratic convention in 1968 narrows down to Senator Robert Kennedy of New York and President Lyndon Johnson. Which one would you prefer to have the Democratic convention select?"

President Johnson has emerged as the top choice of all voters since January, but Kennedy still enjoys a slight lead among Democrats alone. At the height of the book controversy (between the January and February surveys), 'Mr.

Johnson drew even with Kennedy among Democrats, but since that time Kennedy has lost slightly in the contest with President Johnson.

Mr. Johnson has a much stronger appeal for men than does Kennedy. In fact, Mr. Johnson is preferred to Kennedy among men by a 12-point margin. Kennedy, on the other hand, has greater appeal among women, as the figures below indicate:
