

Dear Dennis,

10/4/96

Herewith the corrected La Fontaine manuscript.

You asked about the documents. I suppose at the end of the appropriate chapters. I've indiced ^{at} on each the relevant page of the present ms.

I say this because it would be better if the size of the characters is larger and blacker, as it is with all the others. That would mean more pages.

I have no idea why Jamie decided that verbatim quotations do not include the indicated paragraphing but this way it is confusing. I've marked where each gets a paragraph indentation.

After first noticing this I observed all ^{that} followed. In each instance the indentations were on the draft.

I'm sure she had a reason but I've no idea what it was.

By and large her work was better, more accurate. Please thank her.

I enclose the diskette also.

After all the corrections are made, can it be duplicated on a different program, if that is what they are called, to have it come out larger and blacker, more like typing?

Then we can duplicate that diske and send it to the others.

Many thanks,

Harold

Dear Harold:

Here is the LaFontaine printout. I have gone through it using the spell checker on the word processor to get the obvious typographical and spelling errors. I wanted to go through it myself to catch other errors but that would delay my sending it to you. So here it is. A cursory look through it indicates that Jamie did a reasonably good job.

When you send it back after making whatever corrections you find necessary, you might want to indicated on the printout where you would like the documents to appear in the text, and include copies of them. I may be able to scan the documents and include an image of them on the disk so that the disk will then contain the complete version, including documents.

Hope you and Lil are well.

Regards,

Dennis
