Pentagon Had a 'Plumbers' Squa

By Jack Anderson

Deep in the bowels of the Pentagon, another "plumbers" squad has been operating in the style of the notorious White House "plumbers,"

Its existence was mentioned by Bob Woodward, the star Watergate reporter, in The Washington Post. He wrote about an alleged White House plot to assassinate me in late 1971 or early 1972.

He quoted W. Donald Stewart, a former Pentagon investigator, as saying he had been given "every resource in the book" to stop the leaks to our column. One ef-fort alone, Stewart estimated, cost $100,000.

Stewart claimed he had traced stories in our column to more than 60 classified documents. "Stewart said the leaks to (Jack) Anderson infuriated the White House to the point that then-President Nixon worried about his ability to conduct foreign affairs," wrote Woodward.

The former President revealed the details of the secret Vietnam peace negotiations several weeks ahead of schedule, according to Stewart, because "they were afraid Jack Anderson was going to scoop them.

The truth is, of course, that we exposed Nixon's misrepresentations about the Vietnam war, the India-Pakistan conflict and CIA had attempted to assassiers.

It wasn't national security but political security, in other words, that caused the former President to unleash both the White House "plumbers" and the Pentagon "plumbers" upon Stewart headed the Pentagon "plumbers," who operated out of room 3E993 in the Pentagon. In the spring of 1971, they mistakenly fingered a mild, bespectacled civilian employee, named Gene Smith, as one of our sources.

Smith later told us that Stewart had bullied and badgered him, scalding him with obscenities. Stewart swears that his interrogation of Smith was polite and proper.

In the end, Smith was hauled before a grand jury, which concluded that he was innocent of any wrongdoing.
