Military Surveillance Reported in Minnesota

3/5/7 Associated Press was told yesterday of wide- cratic-Farmer-Labor Party. spread military surveillance of Malcolm Moos, the universtudents and faculty members sity president and a former at the University of Minnesota aide to President Eisenhower, and of others in the St. Paul-Minneapolis area.

One of those listed as brought under surveillance vilians. He testified before the was Harry Davis, a candidate Senate Judiciary Committee's for mayor of Minneapolis in this spring's election who has tional rights.

A Senate investigating unit been endorsed by the Demo-urged legislation to restrict the government's collection and use of information on cion constitusubcommittee

Eugene Eidenberg, the university's assistant vice president for administration, said of the surveillance:

"There was no guidance, no constraint. "The net was cast very wide." He said it began in 1967 after the rioting in Detroit, and was most intensive in the 1968-70 period.

Moos said that, despite antiof the problems in war and antidraft protests on trade accord have the campus, there was no vioup, with the sig- lence requiring even the local

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., (Dlways wished N.C.), the subcommittee chairded as part man, read off a list of sur-rea of the veyed persons he said a fork, which mer military intelligence s refused agent had supplied.

One was Davis, whom Eidenawait- berg described as not only the Big D-F-L endorsed candidate for hich mayor but also "one of the tus most respected members of the black community."

' for what officials call al pause."

d sources indicate tion of how to police. lin in such a hat the