Aid Police, Mollenhoff Tells Press

4/170 By Myra MacPherson Washington Post Staff Writer

Clark Mollenhoff, former muckracking journalist turned White House watchdog, said yesterday that "it is absolutely essential that newspaper reporters cooperate with law enforcement agencies" in giving background information.

Mollenhoff, special counsel to the President, said at a press briefing that this attitude should apply on informaabout anv group. "whether it's information on White Citizen's groups or Black Panthers."

He said the only time this formation was acquired on a troversy surrounding Judge G. confidential basis — "and the Harrold Carswell's nomination only time it's confidential is to the Supreme Court, "and I when there is a specific agree- hope I don't get into it at any ment (between the reporter and the person giving the information) that what is being thing." said is confidential."

Regarding the Justice Department's subpoenaing of reporters notes and television film on the Black Panthers, Mollenhoff said, "I think the integrity.

Justice Department should be Asked very restrained in any effort to subpoena reporters."

Mollenhoff, former Pulitzer Prize winning reporter who said he used to "delight" in leaks, now has a sign in his of-fice that says "Background Only."

He is in charge of spotting possible misdeeds in government and "making sure the President is not misled on matters on which he is making a decision."

He would specify none of the "confidential" areas he was working on. Although Mollenhoff said, "I am investigating things in every department," he refused to shed any ment for the President, Molbegun into the State Depart- Carswell. ment's handling of U.S. policy toward Nigeria and Biafra.

"I am proceeding with my job the way it started out. I thing quite as early as you don't want to get into a discussion of this thing in general."

Denying reported disputes bemade the mistake, failed to tween himself and the Presi- come dent's assistant for national security affairs, Henry A. Kissinger, Mollenhoff said he was ological argument." responsible only to the President and had "direct access" would not apply was if the in- investigating any of the conpoint along the way. That's largely an ideological, political > Mollenhoff said he got involved in the Clement Haynesworth nomination only after there were several charges and Turner-a Nixon appoinreferring to his honesty and tee-was fired.

tion could cause embarrass- wasn't our man."

light on recent stories saying lenhoff implied there may he had been slapped down and have been a "mistake" in not pulled off an inquiry he had more thoroughly examining

"Sure—anytime you make a mistake on anything-or that you don't run across someup with something, there's no way you can be salvaged from it. It's still an ide-

Mollenhoff said his days are now made up of "small suc-Mollenhoff said he was not interesting experiences."

He considers one success was the firing of Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner as chief of the U.S. marshals after the Nixon administration discovered he would be a principal figure in a Senate investigation of irregularities in non-commissioned officers clubs.

Mollenhoff said he moved in to examine the information

"By the time he went to Asked if the Carswell situa- committee to tell his story, he