

Protests Are Staged Overseas

From News Dispatches

Antiwar demonstrators staged protests in Paris and West Berlin yesterday to coincide with the anti-Vietnam war demonstrations in Washington, but the turnout was small.

The French government, seeking to preserve its neutrality as host to the Paris Peace talks, has banned all Vietnam protests. In pre-dawn raids police rounded up about 50 extreme leftists apparently to prevent them from organizing demonstrations. Police sources said at least 30 more were brought in for questioning in other cities.

Nonetheless, about 40 young demonstrators broke windows at the South Vietnamese Embassy after overpowering two police guards. The youths daubed the embassy wall with the slogan, "The NLF (National Liberation Front) Will Win," then fled into the Paris subway.

Under a banner, "Impudent Snobs of the World, Unite," about 30 American students sought to demonstrate on the steps of the U.S. Embassy, but were restrained by police.

The Vietcong's chief delegate to the Paris talks, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, expressed appreciation to all who supported "our just cause."

"Especially, we express our thanks to the American people because, like us, they want a rapid end to the war," she said. "We know pacifists in the U.S. are fighting in very difficult conditions because of U.S. government repression."

By Frank Hoy—The Washington Post

DRAFT-CARD BURNERS — Prof. James Shea, from left, student Dave Lusby and Richard Smith burn their draft cards at a civil-disobedience demonstration yesterday at George Mason College in Fairfax. Two others also burned cards. The men denounced the Vietnam war and called draft reform "a form of Russian roulette."

Associated Press

The name of an American serviceman killed in Vietnam is shouted by this marcher at the gates of the White House. Behind him, in single file, came others in the "March Against Death," scheduled to end this morning.

Nixon Given 79% Support After Talk

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (UPD) —Public support for President Nixon's Vietnam policies reached a new high after his Nov. 3 speech, a poll taken by Sindlinger & Co., a marketing and opinion research firm, showed Thursday.

Almost 8 out of 10 or 79.2 per cent of those surveyed supported the President, Sindlinger said. The previous high of 72 per cent was recorded last June after his troop withdrawal announcement and was followed by a drop to 61.5 per cent in September.

During the period from Nov. 4 through Nov. 11, Sindlinger interviewed a sample of 1,981 adults across the country, asking, "In your opinion, is President Nixon doing all he can to settle the war in Vietnam?"

"A monitoring of the interviews shows most of the new support came from young people of college age," Albert E. Sindlinger, president of the company, said.

The poll showed that 76.5 per cent of those interviewed were opposed to this week's antiwar demonstrations and only 15.9 per cent thought they were a good idea.

Sindlinger said data obtained after the Oct. 15 moratorium had showed 57.4 per cent opposed the demonstration but 31.7 per cent supported it.

Of those interviewed in October about whether they favored an immediate troop withdrawal, 21.2 per cent said yes. The percentage dipped to 11.1 per cent in the most recent survey.

By Bob Burchette—The Washington Post

Antiwar picketers at Justice Department confront line of metropolitan policemen.