The marked paragraphs at the end were so interesting, and so unexplained, I couldn't resist trying to see what I could find. Turned out, as I half-way expected, to be something quite reasonable - see first two entries for 12 and 20 Nov.

Ended up doing more than I had intended to, going through the chronology, and it took more time than I should have spent on it. The date of the clipping shows how far behind I am, logging the stuff. And this is ~~only~~ working only with SFChron! I still have NYT and WXP to go through carefully, going (shudder) all the way back to early November. I'd really prefer to do all three together for one date but since at the moment I can't manage that I'm doing only the Chronicle, on the THEORY that I can at least keep up to date.

Most of this chronology you probably don't need, but since the thing's done you might as well have the copy made for you.
