Security Dangers Linked To White House Inquiry

Administration Sources Cite Leaks to Explain Approval of Burglary Plot in the Pentagon Papers Case

By JOHN HERBERS

Special to The New York Times

President Nixon and members Dr. Ellsberg is on trial on of his staff were disturbed and charges of stealing, copying ingry about a series of news and releasing those papers.

leaks that they felt involved President Nixon was angered by the disclosure and ordered ordered extensive investiga-tions by the Federal Bureau of some of his associates. investigation to determine the source of the leaks. Further, the papers case was bubbling, the White House set up its own investigative team, called the 'plumbers' for closing such New York Times and other leaks because the property of the control of the contro the r.b.i. was doing a thorough states and the Soviet Chind of arms limitations and about White House sources confirmed today that this was the atmosphere surrounding the President and his top assistants at the time that E. Howard the time that E. Howard and were reported to have any were authorized to hurgiarize given some State Department. were authorized to burglarize given some State Department the office of Dr. Daniel Ells-officials lie detector tests in an berg's former psychiatrist.

Danger Cited

position in the country to President Nixon's actions that widened the war in Indochina. The leaking of classified documents has long been a practice among Washington officials and some officials contended at the time that none of the 1971 disclosures threatened the national security, but the fear of threats to it motivated White House actions, according to Administration officials.

Thus, the telephones of reporters and Administration personnel with access to classified documents were tapped. The FRI questioned or at the residue of the resi personnel with access to classified documents were tapped. The F.B.I. questioned or attempted to question reporters and officials. The "plumbers" employed a variety of investigative techniques, which in the case of Dr. Ellsberg, included using the facilities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The White House was further upset about leaks in December, when Jack Anderson, the coumnist, reported information from classified papers regarding the Nixon Administration's position in the Pakitaning the facilities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

some telephone taps on report-executive departments.
ers because of leaks early in Since 1971, leakers of all the Nixon Administration, its kinds from the Nixon Adminis-first big investigation was tration have been drastically made after the publication of curtailed.

WASHINGTON, May 7— the Pentagon papers on the in the summer and fall of 1971, Vietnam war in June of 1971.

As a result, the White House subordinates to find out how eaks, because those around the newspapers about details of neresident did not believe that gotiations between the United he F.B.I. was doing a thorough States and the Soviet Union on attempt to learn the source of

According to these sources, there was a feeling that the leaks had got out of hand and posed a widespread threat to the protection of documents that had a direct bearing on national security matters.

The fears expressed in the White House, they said, were heightend by widespread opposition in the country to President Nixon's actions that widened the war in Indochina. the leaks.

Central Intelligence Agency. believed to have come from the Although the White House White House staff. They appar-was reported to have ordered ently came from persons in