KEY BISCAYNE, July 6— President Nixon continued to work and relax at his Florida home today preparatory to a return to Washington Sunday and a busy week conferring with members of Congress and his economic advisers.

The emphasis is expected to be on domestic affairs in the first week the President will have spent in the White House in more than a month.

He has scheduled a series of meetings on both domestic and foreign problems. Meetings with the Cabinet and with his economic advisers will focus on the high rate of inflation that continues to plague the country.

Officials said no new dramatic policy changes were in preparation, however. They said the President was encouraged by the latest figures on jobs, which showed that the rate of unemployment, at 5.2 per cent, was continuing somewhat lower than some experts had predicted.

At the end of this week, the President is planning to go to San Clemente for about two weeks.

Before departing, he and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are expected to report on their Soviet visit to Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress. Kissinger is due back in Washington Tuesday, and the bipartisan meeting is scheduled for Wednesday or Thursday.

A cabinet meeting and a meeting with Vice President Gerald R. Ford also are scheduled.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler declined comment on arguments to be made Monday before the Supreme Court on Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's request for additional tapes of presidential conversations.

Ziegler said the matter is being handled by the President's counsel, James D. St. Clair, and that the President is being kept advised of developments by Alexander M. Haig Jr., White House chief of staff.

Reports that the President may embark on another foreign trip as early as next month drew cautious denials from White House spokesmen. The President has repeatedly said he intends to visit Japan this year, but Ziegler and other officials said they did not expect the trip to take place in August.

One official suggested that September or October would be a better bet. But he cautioned that no decisions have been made. No American President has ever visited Japan, although President Eisenhower planned to do so. He canceled his plans at the last moment because of anti-American riots there.

The President today signed a Senate resolution extending for one month the Export-Import Bank Act, which had expired June 30.

The resolution extends the bank's authority to operate until July 30 to give Congress time to complete work on new legislation, which has been snarled on Capitol Hill over the issue of loan guarantees covering exports to the Soviet Union.
