ixon in Calif.: An Angry, Isolated Man

By Carroll Kifpatrick Washington Post Staff Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif., July 5 - The man who, early in his presidency became one of history's most private public figures, now under the pressure of Watergate has built a shield around himself making him more of a mystery figure than ever at a time when he needs public understanding the most.

Only occasionally glimpses of the human being emerge.

Bringing his hand down on his desk one day this week, he exclaimed to an assistant: "We did release the May 22 statement, didn't we?"

It was an expression of President Nixon's exasperation over the fact that the question is raised over and

"These types of stories continue to run, the innuendo and the suggestions continue to fly . . . and it is unjust, it is unfair, and it is not . . . relevant to our way of life in this country for this type of smear charge to be made against the President of the United States."

over in Congress and in the press whether he will reply to Watergate charges.

"Do people read it on May 22 and file it on May 23 and expect it to be issued again and again?" he asked with more feeling than he ever shows in public.

The President was referring, of course, to his most recent statement on Watergate, the lengthy printed document declaring that he did not know about the Watergate break-in in advance, did not know about the cover-up until March and never offered executive clemency to the Watergate burglars.

There was another glimpse of the human being at a press conference

Ronald L. Ziegler held at the San Clemente Inn Tuesday. Ziegler was asked for comment about a Los Angeles Times report that special prosecutor Archibald Cox had begun an inquiry into the President's purchase of his Key Biscayne and San Clemente homes.

Ziegler called the report unfounded, malicious and scurrilous.

"These types of stories continue to run, the innuendo and the suggestions continue to fly out of this environment, and it is unjust, it is unfair, and it is not in my mind relevant to our way of life in this country for this type of smear charge to be made against the President of the United States," the press secretary

See NIXON, A5, Col. 1

Nixon in Calif.: Image of Angry, Isolated Man

NIXON, From A1

"Is what you are saying a reflection of the President's point of view?" a reporter

"Absolutely," Ziegler rep-terms of the President-but President is appalled suggest that there has been you can say libelous these constant efforts to clous-I din't know whether ing undertaken in the malithese consistent efforts be-"I would say that "Is he mad?" in stories reporting that the more heavily damaged than a million dollars at San government Nixon believes he has been Another aide thinks Mr. spent this property," Ziegler repciated with the purchase of in any way wrongdoing asso-has by Watergate. stalling a new furnace and name of security-than planting flowers—all in the building guardhouses, Clemente erecting flagpoles of charges, that "fly out of sieged, of an angry man cothese blimpses of the Presi this environment." who is a victim of all sorts his estate here, of a man oped up behind the walls of dent is one of a man be-The picture painted by curate portrait. the President well and will talk deny that that is an ac-The few aides who know about public opinion. scandal, they say, and he unimpact frustrated and that he is not ties and is well informed derstands the political realiognizes fully the scope and in a distraught state. He rec-They insist that he is not of the Watergate > accurate, tain, despite the formidable will be accepted, they mainthat his May 22 statement is III and other former assist charges by John W. Dean being under siege. He knows state of mind is not one of and eventually the country onstrate he is the leader of public confidence, they relieves he can ever regain the months ahead will demwill because his actions over ply that he is confident he Asked if the President be-tions, programs and policies main in office until Jan. 20, 1977, they say that his acconvinced that he will Picturing a man who is will restore his credibility.

To the question whether he dency, the inner circle repheavy clouds over his presican govern with > eign policy initiatives, aides reply. cisions. He is actively workcan and is. He is making deconducted significant forgrams and policies. He has ing on a wide range of prolies emphatically that he searching for the answers and still is unclear what President still is puzzled by the President, said in an in-terview with The Washingwhat happened, mants here say that ton Post last week, infor-But just as J. Fred Bu-zhardt, special counsel to still is faith that the Dean accusa said, "Let's get the facts out." They seem to have Watergate, and repeatedly said, "Let's get the facts step he should take next. White House involvement in whether there was the March disclosures he They repeat that prior to over and over can ted.

President really do fice here. clusion of his home and of labors long hours in the semind of this President as he porters surely do not know more about the man than gle walk with LBJ told them know the whole truth about what is racing through the Nixon staff members. countless interviews any of these matters. A sinwith on formal occasions when with him. They see him only never have a private word ence on March 15. Mr. Nixon at a news conferhe greets a visitor or signs a Reporters last questioned seldom been far from a criold chief executive, who has sionally shows signs of fawalks more slowly and occabut not much. He sometimes he did a year or two ago, sis, looks well. He may appear somewhat older than Surprisingly, the 60-year-younger than his three-score like a man considerably Nixon's face. He still looks ing years of his presidency son's face in the last harrow marked Lyndon have not developed in Mr But the deep lines that Ħ John-years ago. His color is good that he is mentally alert and is spending a great amount Those around him White House more than four weight since he entered the Mr Nixon does not appear or gained insist tions, which they acknowl-edge did enormous damage, be successfully rebut-

Watergate.

of time on issues other than hours on Watergate, it is conceded, but he concen-

He does spend many Reporters who cover the bill or poses for a picture. They and at the same time await the verdict of the courts, they report.

Because of these consider-tive and legislative branches powers between the execudefend the separation of believes that he must act to know what the next charges may contain. He earnestly vantage because he does not President at a grave disad conference, and other probtrols, the European security the phase IV economic coneral budget, development of the energy shortage, the fed bodia, relations with China, conferred at length on Camto one informant, he has well This week, according lems.

The aides

picture

tigue as he boards his plane voters in this most agonizappeals he can make to the what he can say and in the ations, he is inhibited to have lost

ated last November. ries. He was determined community who he humilioffice by his old enemies Nixon was re-elected by one of the great landslide victothan a year ago, although it seems years, that Richard ing crisis he has faced. Only one thing seems cerpress and the intellectual most been hounded out and domestic reforms. Yet the Democratic in a short time, he has mitted. For it was much less must be greater than is adwell-disciplined ner turmoil even for tain, and that is that the inbring about major foreign President Party,