

Dear Clay,

5/30/98

I've gone over all the clippings I used in the Hersh-It book and enclose the Canadian citations and a couple of Xeroxes, all ^I have that I cited and have on file. Thanks.

I ^{am} get a phone call I should have gotten a quarter or an hour ago, so I may be interrupted.

I think it is a safe assumption that anything in your local papers that can be of interest to the FBI or that the local agents may think they'd catch hell for not sending to their field office will be sent there, filed and indexed. It has happened to me and I've thousands of cases in disclosed FBI files. They all do it and once done it is on file for misuses by all. And it gets misused. So, while I agree with you in your belief in the correctness of what Niemoeller said, that does not require putting a head on the block in peacetime.

We are both on lasix and neither of us walks enough. It would be easier for me but once I get started I keep working as much as I can.

If you do write something of course I'll be glad to check it for accuracy. And if you want to discuss it, of course I will.

Evica and I think the nut's name is Drago just assumed that I was a government agent. They gave no reason for asking for that study and they did not apologize for it or retract it or anything like that. So I can't give you their "logic."

That ~~is~~ conspiracy museum is a nutbouse financed by one of the nicest of men, Bob Cutler. I do not try to sell the books we have. I want to have them for those who have the interest. So I do not try to attract the nuts to sell copies to them. That will have them around longer and more ~~likely~~ likely to be available to those who have serious interests and not nuttiness in mind.

I keep a stack for McKnight in one place and I'll add your enclosures to it. The college is keeping him busy for a short time longer than he has his sabbatical. I've not seen him in several weeks.

I'm in the Posner conclusions then I have to get on a foreword or an introduction of both. More than 400 of my pages.

Thanks and best,

Harold
