Dear Manny,

The hotel neither paged me nor gave me your message Friday. I was having lunch in their coffee shop when you called. Not until after I checked out when, as an afterthought, I asked if there were any messages, did I get your call notice. By then I barely had time to catch the train and assumed you were back in court anyway from what your secretary said.

I had told her that because I was leaving immediately there was then no need for you to call since you were in court. I had phoned a week earlier and, strangely, got no answer during office hours. But it seems that your phone company is coming apart anyway. Aside from the extra parties on my private line, my service in the country is better.

I hope to be in NYV again soon. Hopefully, this time I'll have advance notice. On this last trip, I found out Wednesday that I was getting to oppose Huie and the chief prosecutor in the Ray case Thursday. I barely had time to collect what I'd need and had to leave early Thursday.

I do hope that you had the conference with Dick you said you needed when last we spoke and that time has not dimmed recollection of whatever it is you had hoped to learn from him.

Best regards,

Harold Weisberg
