'TRUTH ABOUT ASSASSINATION'

Book Challenging Manchester Facts Starts on Tuesday

"The Truth About the Assassination," by Charles Roberts, which challenge points made by William Manchester in his book, "The Death of a President," starts Tuesday in the Record American.

A serialization, in six installments, of Roberts' fascinating book will conclude in the Sunday Advertiser of April 2.

Roberts, White House correspondent for Newsweek Magazine, was in the first press bus that fateful November day in Dallas. He was one of two newsmen who witnessed the swearing-in of President Johnson aboard Air Force One. Roberts says that he wrote his book "without authorization from anyone."

"Instead," Roberts says, "I wrote it as a reporter who covered both Presidents."

Roberts answers such burning questions of the day as:

- Are Warren report critics scholars or scavengers.
- How did LBJ really react when he was about to be sworn in.
- Did one bullet hit both JFK and Gov. Connally?

You'll be spellbound and enthralled by the fast-moving articles that clear away myths that frequently have been tossed about.

So, watch for the first article, starting Tuesday, in the Record American.
