Dear Peggy,

Mark Crouch is the man to whom Secret Service Agent Fox gave the black-and-white autopsy pictures. He has been close to both Groden and Harry.

I've written him in haste because I have an early-morning medical appointment and I hope that what you sent will be in today's mail. Tomorrow I'm busy all day, with the visit of cousins I've not seen in years.

I should have told you that Fox developed and printed the black-and-whites and was at the Navy lab, to which he took them, when the color photos were printed.

If Rookstool knows, he told me that what Richard did is criminal.

Gary Mack thinks that Rookstool may not be a special agent and may be spying on the critics for the FBI.

I hope you did speak to Adams yesterday. As I feared, it was close to lunchtime when I got home.

I'm having to be guarded with my friend who is Carroll & Graf's counsel but I did tell him what is afoot.

Harry phoned Crouch yesterday clearly over-excited. Crouch thinks he was in Dallas. He had an idea of what was going on. They should know. Other than from Harry.

So, as Mark pointed out, he has someone informing him. He boasted of that often to me, saying he has several hundred helping him. Gary knows the name of a woman in Dallas who is and for some reason I think Harry told me of one in Pittsburg.

While I do not know how Harry had the glimmer he reflected to Mark, what is obvious is that Richard learned and phoned him.

Perhaps even Rookstool.

In haste,

Harold
