Dear Farris,

Having worked 80 years to earn the right I now exercise it, to say I've forgotten what I sent you 3/27/93. Or was it 3/6, which I now think.

Anyway, you were under no obligation to respond to my informing you that despite your earlier denials, I had letters Livingstone wrote in which he said you(pl) were helping him.

As you may have learned from Mary, he has been making threats and using nasty words in addition to charging a number of us with conspiring to commit illegal acts.

For possible self-defense I've been collecting what I can that might be of use.

I now have letters in which he states the amount of time he spent with you and that there is a reciprocal agreement under which he claims to have received what he regards as valuable information.

If I remember correctly one letter uses the word "deal" to describe what he says is an arrangement between him and the FBI.

Understand, I am not making any accusation. I have many FBI records indicating that anything like this is against policy. But then I also have some reflecting the taking of liberties with that policy. Including by your office.

If what he has told others is correct, he is due to hand his manuscript in tomorrow. That is consistent with a number of earlier reports that it is scheduled for October publication. The usual spread is six months. Maybe October is a month of interesting developments? It surely may be if the book says what his letters do! Especially if the book says what he has told me it will!

He has also referred to ~~have~~ having a contract for two books, not only High Trash 3.

The thrust of a number of his letters is that he is working with the FBI and police in a criminal investigation. While he does not use these words he does caution those working with him to do nothing to embarrass the Bureau.

Sincerely,

Harold
