

Dear David,

6/3/93

The Jim Leavelles were here yesterday. They remember all of you fondly. We liked them. They had to return to their daughter's home earlier than they'd have liked, so Jim did not finish looking at the files he'd selected. He got some copies and made some notes. And we enjoyed good food together. And the daughter has some new plants.

An Onalaska, Wisconsin senior high school history class had a pacque that is a bit excessive, pleasantly so, made for me and had their <sup>of</sup> teacher get it to me. He also gave me some picture post cards the boys may find interesting. Among other things they show how small the mighty Mississippi River is not far from where it begins. Also a magnetized name plate of the nearby larger city.

Their city has an Indian name, Onalaska. I do not know what it means. Maybe the boys can find some use for it, the plate with the city name.

I've heard nothing from the states attorney's office, unless that is an oversight of some kind I'm inclined to believe it means they have not reached any decision on what I presented or are waiting to hear from others, perhaps your department, perhaps the postal inspectors.

Anything new that you know that is not confidential?

I've heard nothing from or about Harry so I guess he is busy with High Trash 3.

For his own reasons Rick has not responded to my last letter in which I refuse to accept his explanations that are obviously untrue.

Leavelle confirmed or expressed the belief that most of the nonsense Harry was fed in Dallas came from Rothermel.

Hope we see all of you soon.

Our best,

Harold
