6/10/69- I presume you caught the Foreman appearance on the Dick Cavett Show last night. He is smooth, persuasive, very shrewd and, as I see it, hahas no reluctance in playing God and both prosecutor and defense counsel. If you have any thoughts on what he said (and didn t say) I'd welcome them.

Yesterday's Supreme Court "fairness-doctrine" decision makes me believe I should renew all those requests I have made that were either turned down or not answered. I think I'll write Cavett, because Foreman said his former client was guilty and there was no other side presented.

I've started to read COUP, preparatory to writing the additions. I've done a little more than a fourth. I'm up to Kyles and hope to get at least to the midpoint today. Thus far I have made very few changes, all of tense, and found a few undetected typos. As of this moment at status, I think those few things that are date I'll take care of in notes, where they are not to be part of the additions.

Making changes that do not require repaging is not difficult, but makking changes on top of changes can be very time consuming because I use magic tape instead of cement. Therefore, any errors you have caught or cahnges you recommend I would like as soon as possible. I've heard nothing from you since I sent COUP to you (I did, didn't I?). I', not in any hurry for its return, but for suggestions I am.

Once you satisfy yourself, if you do, that there has been an LA campaign against me, I wonder if it is worth the effort to write those who may have been influenced with whom you have had correspondence. Two that puzzle me are Gary Murr and Helen Hartmann. I also wonder about the kid Zitch, who has done some good things. I wrote and asked him if he wanted public credit for what he had done for me and got no reply. This was after a considerable silence on his part and after Fred started up, and I do have indications he and Fred have been in touch. Zitch is at Reseda. You possibly have not been in touch with him, in which case it would be inappropriate. For the most part I think it best to ignore this nastiness, however, Most of all Murr disturbs me. Yet I cannot, in each case, help thinking each should have sought his own information. Of course, I do not have proof Fred has been writing these people, or speaking to them, or even that Lifton did. However, the coincidence is remarkable.
