

Garrison, 9 Others Due at Shaw Hearing

Clay L. Shaw's attorneys have subpoenaed Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison and nine others to appear at a federal court hearing here Monday on Shaw's move to block his prosecution on a perjury charge in state court.

Garrison accused Shaw of lying to the jury which, in 1969, found him innocent of charges of conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

The perjury trial was to have started earlier this week—but Shaw's lawyers obtained a federal court temporary restraining order blocking the trial until the plea for an injunction is heard and decided.

OTHERS SUBPOENAED yesterday include Andrew (Mumu) Schiambra and John Volz, Garrison's assistants, and Criminal District Judge James L. Alcock, who was Garrison's chief aide during the conspiracy prosecution of Shaw.

Also subpoenaed were Perry Raymond Russo, Garrison's star witness in the conspiracy trial; New Orleans police Lt. Ed O'Donnell, Criminal District Court Judge Malcolm V. O'Hara, who is scheduled to hear the perjury case in state court, and three members of a business group that provided funds for Garrison's assassination probe, Willard Robertson, Joseph Rault and Cecil Shilstone.

SHAW CONTENTS that Garrison's perjury prosecution is only for harassment and is in violation of Shaw's constitutional rights.

Garrison charged Shaw with perjury two days after the conspiracy trial ended. He claimed Shaw lied when he denied knowing Lee Harvey Oswald and David Ferrie, named as co-conspirators in the plot.

The Warren Commission named Oswald as the lone assassin. Both Oswald and Ferrie are now dead.
