Dear Mr. Steinberg,

If only in haste I must acknowledge our debt for your kindness, thoughtfulness and above all for your willingness, with that warmth the typed word permits. Although recent successes have lessened the feeling of alone-ness, it is still quite meaningful to get such encouragement.

My wife is starting a page in our books for contributions. This is the first in cash, although others in the form of a few services, like a little typing and the art work on the book, were quite significant. We shall try and record what we do with any contributions, if there are more. I think I shall allocate your $20.00 to Xeroxing and copying photographs. In this way, perhaps, I can show you tangibly what your help has amounted to.

I think you may be interested in knowing the consequences, at least in part, of the help I got from those lawyers: Two wholesalers in New York have ordered 1500 copies of the second 5,000 since we spoke! We are swamped with mail, and orders. As fast as the bindery can complete its function, the books are on their way. It is a wonderful feeling, even though I know it cannot keep up this way for long. I do understand that as of now it is a best-seller in NYC, even with most of the bookstores not knowing how to get it. The printer has extended me credit for an insertion by which, when they send their monthly statements, the wholesalers can inform their customers of its availability. And, at the rate things are going, our financial problems will soon be much less severe. Today I made the last payment on the first printing, and even without the burning ceremony it was a real good feeling.

I've had a brief note from Mr. Price mentioning your call and saying he'd write when less busy. I do hope that in some form what he has in mind and what you conceive can result in an ultimate deposit in Yale (his selection) of all the working papers of all of us working in this field. I think, for the future of our country, it could be valuable.

Again, thanks, and excuse the haste. I have more packages to wrap, but I wanted not to get bogged down and forget your letter.

Sincerely,

Herold Weisberg

Mr. Harold Weissberg,
Hyattstown, Md.

Dear Mr. Weissberg:

Please find enclosed herewith my check in the amount of $5.60 in payment for your book entitled Whitewash, and an additional check in the amount of $20.00 which I hope might defray some of your minor expenses in the pursuance of your research. I regret the latter check cannot be greater.

Pursuant to our conversation of recent date, I spoke with Mr. Arthur Price, of the Pennsylvania General Paper Co. and offered my service and time in order to foster a foundation for the continuance of research along the lines which you have been pursuing. Mr. Price advised me that he would be in touch with me some time in the near future since I advised him of my willingness to participate in such a program.

In accordance with your request, I shall forward the zerox copies of the cases which you requested, and I shall send you a legal opinion on Part II of your book. If I may be of any further assistance to you, please do not hesitate to ask.

I am also looking forward to meeting you personally when you come to New York and when your schedule so permits.

Allow me to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for your prompt mailing of Whitewash.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Very truly yours,

Joel M. Steinberg
