

Give Ya Two Jack Rubys for a Dealey Plaza

■ You've seen the movie—now swap the cards. Coup d'Etat, a boxed set of 36 trading cards featuring major players and sites associated with the assassination of John F. Kennedy, has been in stores since 1990, but not until Oliver Stone's controversial "JFK" did sales boom. "Suddenly, they're selling. We're getting calls from everyone," says Catherine Yronwode of the Forestville, Calif.-based Eclipse Comics. To cash in on the new attention, Eclipse has even come up with an unofficial film tie-in: "JFK" moviegoers can get the $8.95 card set at a discount ($4.50) by sending in their ticket stubs. Says Yronwode: "We like to think our cards are more objective than the movie."
