

Dear Mr. Summers,

2/2 15/79

The best source on citation of source on the death certificate is my Post Mortem. After all these years I'm afraid to trust my recollection. Howard Roffman did some able following up on the efforts, particularly by Secret Service and Archives/GSA to hide records and frustrate my searches.

My best recollection is that years before I made any public use, not to signal to the hidars or permit misuse by the nats, I found that that and other originals were "misfiled" among the records that went to the printer!

The Secret Service made a perfectly honest kind of deal with me and then under pressures, I'm pretty sure from the Mitchell Justice Department (which would have behaved the same under any other Attorney General) backed out. In return for providing me with certain records, largely medical- and autopsy-related, I'd not sue them.

I think I go into some of this in Post Mortem with regard to the Memo of Transfer.

There may be further information in the chapter "An Original and Five Pink Copies."

My wife will include info about books. We generally send orders out in next day's mail, when I'm not too busy for the packaging/ I suggest that Special Handling would be worth the slight extra cost if you are in a hurry.

The easiest and by far the cheapest way to get Oswald in New Orleans is by xeroxing Mary's copy. Xeroxing costs here are high.

Please tell Mary that whatever ails her I hope it leaves her soon and leaves her well.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr Weisberg,

BBC

I believe you will have heard my name from Scott Malone, who worked for me on a film about the Kennedy case last year. As you may have heard from him I am now working - for my sins! - on a book. It will attempt to be a roundup review of the case, aimed primarily at Europe, which has seen little since Mark Lane (with the exception of 'Legend')

I have of course been reading your books for a long time, but always other people's copies. I would now like them all. Would you please let me know how much cash to send you. If we manage to exchange letters swiftly, the above address is fine for mailing the books. If we near the start of March, please send to me c/o Rosemond, Sugartown Farm, Rd 2, Malvern, Pennsylvania 19355.

Finally, I am having difficulty citing properly for the Admiral Burkely death certificate, which I have as a document without a number. Can you advise me the correct way to to cite? Secret Service doc?

Thanks in advance.

Yours sincerely,

Anthony Summers
