Dear Mr. Healy:

My husband left at 10 o'clock this morning and our mail delivery is not cuntil 10:30. I am writing to account for his silence.

To a degree I can answer your letter because he discussed with me what he thought might provide a New Orleans angle. He meant the federal attorney in Miami, not New Orleans. The name I know is not Bosch. Whatever it is, he carried a file with him for you.

Sincerely,

Lillian Weisberg

Dear Mr. Weisberg:

Herewith is the dispatch which we published regarding the developments referred to by you in your letter of October 13.

So far as I have been able to determine, the United States attorney at New Orleans has had no connection with this case. Federal agents whom I know well tell me that they never heard of a Dr. Orlando Bosch living in New Orleans.

I knew Jose Bosch, who was high in the official family of the Barcardi rum operation. Early in the Castro regime he and Fidel apparently were friendly; but I believe he is in exile.

Just who is this person you had in mind when you wrote, "At least one of these names can well be that of a man who once engaged in mysterious activities in New Orleans and then (to me) mysteriously disappeared."?

The Washington Post story, of which you sent me a photocopy, contains names of several persons arrested in Miami; but these names have no particular significance to knowledgeable New Orleanians. A copy of the indictment returned in Miami, to the best of my knowledge, is not available here.

Sincerely,

George W. Healy

The man indicted as the leader, Dr. Orlando Bosch, seemed triumphant after his arrest by FBI agents. While being taken to jail under $50,-000 bond, Bosch raised his haudcuffed arms and made "V" with fingers of each hand as he shouted: "Victory for Cuban liberation."

Bosch and two of the nine were charged in the Sept. 16 cannonading of a Polish freighter in Miami. The attack became an international incident. The indictment also identified Bosch as the mysterious "Ernesto," the voice of Cuban Power who announced attacks sometimes before they oc-

Wilson, prime minister of Great Britain, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, president of Mexico, and Gen. Francisco Franco, head of state in Spain. All nine of those arrested Friday by FBI agents were charged with conspiracy to violate the neutrality of the United States by making war against another nation from U.S. soil. In announcing the arrests, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said, "Cuban Power is a militant anti-Castro organization which has publicly claimed responsibility for various acts of violence against property of those nations which have continued to carry on trading with Cuba."

Targets included consulates, offices of government airlines and companies which shipped mercy packages to families in Cuba.
