

June 2, 1967

Editor, The Washington Post
1515 L Street, NW
Washington, D. C.

Sir:

When books proving the Warren Report wrong are published, you do not review them. When New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison begins an investigation into a New Orleans aspect of the assassination, you and most of the press poleax him. Your June 2 editorial berates him for producing no "New evidence", as though there is anything wrong with the old not used, misused, misrepresented or destroyed. Had he produced any "new evidence" outside a courtroom, would you not have assailed him because it was not in a courtroom?

Cannot you and the rest of the press leave him alone to conduct the investigation? Must you hew the shameful line you and the rest of the press have followed from the time the first bullet hit home? Is it more important to you that, in whatever way you can, you persevere in the dishonor of the press on this subject, do what you can to interfere with or make impossible what we so terribly need, a judicial determination of fact? Why do you try so hard to destroy the one possibility we have? Dare you not face it? Why will you not leave this to the courts, where at long last it should be?

Is criticism of the fraud called the Report of the President's Commission "subversive" to you? You sting with no editorials when Jack Ruby's lawyer, publicity-seeking Sol Dann, says any lawyer or judge who dares criticize your personal sacred cow, the Report, should be disbarred. Can anyone be more truly subversive in our society than he who so insists or those who are silent on hearing it?

In only a few minor details has Garrison added to what I have already published, entirely from the official evidence that was so sadly misused, or written but not yet published, all of which was available to you. You failed your charge and hate those who now prove it.

Despite you, some day people will understand what has happened. If you have the little regard for our national honor you display, you should be selfish enough to cherish your own and not stake it on a Canutian futility and your own blind ignorance.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Garrison's Conspiracy

Jim Garrison, the rambunctious district attorney of New Orleans, has established one thing so far in his investigation of President Kennedy's assassination. He has proved that a great many people in this country are so eager to find some great plot behind the President's death that they will grasp at straws.

According to a Harris Survey published in this newspaper Monday morning, one in every four Americans has been converted to the conspiracy theory in the last three or four months. Since nothing has happened in that time concerning the assassination except the opening of Mr. Garrison's circus, the only thing the change can be attributed to is that circus and the publicity it has had.

But it is far easier to stir the doubts of all of us who hate to think that Mr. Kennedy died only because of the malevolence of one man than it is to produce evidence of a sinister plot. And Mr. Garrison has yet to produce in public any evidence unless one considers as evidence the flights of fantasy that can be woven from bits of facts or the theories that seem to spring in full bloom from Mr. Garrison's brow.

Mr. Garrison does have an answer for everything—the press hindered his investigation; the CIA won't tell him what he wants to know; expended cartridges were not found at Dallas because men were designated to pick them up immediately; bullets were not found because they were of a type that disintegrate on contact; etc. But his answers are not facts or, even less, evidence.