Dear Miss Kohl:

Because of the initial reluctance of speakers' bureaus to book anyone on the subject of the Kennedy assassination and because I am alone among the original critics of the Warren Report to have continued my work, investigations, analyses and writing, I am not represented by a bureau and do not have any catalog. I have restricted the appearances I make so that I can work with as little interruption as possible.

However, I never turn down requests from colleges and I have yet to find an appearance before a college group an unrewarding experience. From this experience I have learned that, on this subject and with the evidence I now have, it is preferable to avoid visuals. I do have them without limit in the form of slides and pictures and documents that can be presented with an opaque projector. But I use them only on request and I always have sufficient with me in case there is a change of mind.

The format I prefer is one that allows maximum opportunity for interchange with the audience and for the audience to ask the questions it most wants answered. This subject is so enormous, it is not possible to cover all of it; therefore, I prefer to satisfy the audience.

I prefer to discuss the Presidential and other assassinations as they relate to the integrity of our society, to how society and government functioned when confronted with these great tragedies. However, I can limit the presentation to any special aspect desired and I do have an enormous amount of as yet unpublished material. I have printed four books beginning with the first on the subject, have three more ready for printing and have researched a number of others.

When I appear before university audiences, I ask for the honorarium usually provided plus my actual expenses unless the honorarium itself is adequate for both. Often I am asked to conduct seminars and engage in "bull sessions" with groups of students, and these I willingly do.

Should you desire to have me appear, if you were to let me know now, we could arrange almost any date you like because I have as yet made no commitments for the coming academic year.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
