

Extremists In Kennedy Probe Hit

Special to The Sentinel

Stevens Point, Wis. — Left-wing critics of the Warren Commission report on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy have "thrown a pall of crazed theory over events at Dallas," according to David Wrone, a University of Wisconsin — Stevens Point history professor.

Wrone, who spoke at the university's assassination symposium here, said left-wing critics have distorted the truth by trying to make facts fit their ideology.

One left-wing theory, he said, is that the assassination was the work of the CIA, the Mafia, organized crime or any combination of the three.

Right-wing critics have been equally detrimental because they base insight on ideology and insist that the assassination was part of a Communist plot, Wrone said.

He said "there is no red thread" in the evidence.

"Sinister" critics theorize that big business was responsible for the assassination because "Kennedy was going radical on them."

It is only responsible critics whose careful research will "establish a fund of knowledge to help ward off this confusion," Wrone said.
