

3/6/89

Dear John,

Many thanks for your fine work in New Orleans and your note of 3/3, with enclosed chart. Looking forward to hearing what you observed.

Your chart is an excellent idea. I'd like to be able to add it, with credit, to the appendix to Post Mortem. I plan something a little different, if I can get it done accurately. I'd like a down-view of the entire body, with the official fiction represented against this minimum reality. Some of this was done early by Whitney Joy, a retired engineer, of Tucson, Ariz. I have not heard from him for a while. Foreman has duplicated some of his work. As I recall it, Joy figured that the shot described in the evidence had to have come from a 45 degree angle. This, plotted against the seating in the car (where Foreman is in error in his representation), should also be effective, as it was in your testimony.

When I first discovered what I did in the Clark-panel report, I could not believe it. I consulted a local radiologist who confirmed what I interpreted. He has promised to get me an average-sized skull X-ray, normal, if he can learn it, the size of JFK's, and to plot the various representations of the wounds on it. I will add that to the appendix, too.

Hurriedly,

Harold Weisberg
