INVOLVEMENT OF JACK RUBY IN UNION KILLING IN 1939

Jack Ruby, who was then known as Jack Rubenstein, was employed by Local 20467 of the Scrap Iron and Junk Handlers Union in Chicago, Illinois, from 1937 to 1940 as a union organizer.

Attorney Leon Cooke, who was the union's financial secretary, was shot on December 8, 1939, by the union's president, John Martin. Cooke died of the wounds on January 5, 1940. Martin was subsequently acquitted on the ground of self-defense.

Ruby had been a friend of Cooke's. Indications were that after the killing, Ruby was so upset that he was unable to devote himself further to union activities and left its employ.

Information regarding this is on page 788 of the "Warren Commission Report" (attached).

Commission Exhibit 1235 (attached) is an FBI investigative insert which contains information that an extensive mearch of the records of the Chicago Police Department did not reflect any reference to John Martin, Jack Ruby or Rubenstein, or to the murder of Leon Cook....

Doc #2

Cormission Exhibit 1236 (attached), contains the results of a November 25, 1963, check of the records of the "Chicago Tribune" newspaper morgue by the YEI. An article was found which stated Cook_ died on January 5, 1940. It states that Cook_ went to the union offices on December 8, 1939, and while talking to Martin, was shot as a result of an argument involving the amount of pay givan to union members. The article points out that Cook_ went to the hospital under his own power and gave a statement to the effect that while talking with Martin, Martin became angry, pulled a gun and shot him. In his trial, Martin maintained that he shot Cook_ in self-defense as it was Cook_ who had the gun. Martin's secretary testified abe saw the two men arguing and struggling, but could not see who had the gun or how it was fired.

This article states that much of the information about this matter came from Jack Rubenstein on December 9, 1939.

A second article reports that on January 16, 1940, Martin was freed of the charges of murdering Cook_.

Labor union activities.—Ruby reported that in "about 1937" he became active in Local 20467 of the Scrap Iron and Junk Handlers Union.<sup>248</sup> At this time, his friend, attorney Leon Cooke, was the local's financial secretary.<sup>249</sup> Records provided by the Social Security Administration indicate that Ruby was employed by the union from late 1937 until early 1940; <sup>140</sup> he worked as a union organizer and negotiated with employers on its behalf.<sup>131</sup>

On December 8, 1939, the union's president, John Martin, shot Cooke, who died of gunshot wounds on January 5, 1940; Martin was subsequently acquitted on the ground of self-defense.<sup>132</sup> Although a Jack Rubenstein is mentioned in the minutes of a union meeting on February 2, 1940,<sup>133</sup> and Ruby is reported to have said after Cooke's death that he wanted to "take over" the union,<sup>154</sup> the evidence indicates that Ruby was so upset by Cooke's death that he was unable to devote himself further to union activities and left its employ.<sup>185</sup> Ruby reported that after Cooke's death he adopted the middle name "Leon," which he used only infrequently, in memory of his friend.<sup>156</sup>

Since Ruby was the ultimate source of all but one of these accounts,<sup>337</sup> other descriptions of Ruby's separation from the union cannot with certainty be deemed inaccurate. These reports indicated that Ruby might have been forced out of the union by a criminal group, or might have left because he lacked the emotional stability necessary for successful labor negotiations <sup>339</sup> or because he felt he was not earning enough money with the union.<sup>160</sup>

Although the AFL-CIO investigated the ethical practices of local 20467 in 1956, placed the local in trusteeship, and suspended Paul Dorfman, who succeeded Martin and Cooke, there is no evidence that Ruby's union activities were connected with Chicago's criminal element.<sup>161</sup> Several longtime members of the union reported that it had a good reputation when Ruby was affiliated with it <sup>162</sup> and employers who negotiated with it have given no indication that it had criminal connections.<sup>163</sup>

Subsequent employment.—In 1941, Ruby and Harry Epstein organized the Spartan Novelty Co., a small firm that sold in various northeastern States small cedar chests containing candy and gambling devices known as punchboards.<sup>144</sup> Earl Ruby and two of Jack Ruby's friends, Martin Gimpel and Martin Shargol, were also associated in this venture. The group had no fixed addresses, living in hotels.<sup>245</sup>

Late in 1941. Jack Ruby returned to Chicago, where he continued his punchboard business through the mails.<sup>144</sup> Following the December 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor, he and several friends decided to design and sell plaques commemorating the Day of Infamy. However, the venture was impeded by Ruby's perfectionistic approach to details of design which resulted in numerous production delays.<sup>147</sup> By the time Ruby's copyrighted plaque <sup>146</sup> was finally ready for sale, the market was flooded with similar items.<sup>147</sup> At about this time,

The Untouchables: Where Congressional Probe of Jack Ruby Could Lead

WASHINGTON -- There are many money-making cults

not the least of which is that of the assassination plot worshippers. This cult now is cheering into detion a congressional committee's probe of Jack Ruby, the late small-time Dallas hood (a Chicago transplant) who killed Lee Harvey Oswald, who murdered Jack Kennedy according to two of the world's most scientific ballistic experts.

Bravo to the investigation. It will disappoint the cult. But if the controlling investigative-prone Congressmen and women persist in following all leads -they'll get to an amazing conglomerate of violence--venders such as the Capone mob. And to the late Jimmy Hoffa. And to his late buddy, the thick-necked Paul "Red" Dorfman, whose son Allen has for years made millions of dollars out of the now heavily investigated Teamsters Central States, South East, South West pension fund. Chicago-based, of course.

Doc #16

At this point I do believe the congressional committee will lose ardor, steam and indignation. The probe could uncover political ramifications -- on the -majority's own side.

It's a simple trail they'll find unwinding: back in 1938 somebody staked Jack Ruby to a few bucks so he could go into the waste material handlers' union business. He got what's called an AFL federal local charter (now out of existence). Junk, waste-handling and garbage meats are lucrative items. So one day Ruby's union associate found himself dead. Ruby then was secretary--treasurer. Then he got word from the "mob." Get out. He did. Soon Paul "Red" Dorfman was the federal local's secretary-treasurer. And Ruby got himself a Dallas bar close to the only two tolerable hotels in the center of town. Ruby got to be a police buff. He was not an FBI undercover man. As a bar owner he heard things and an FBI agent would drop around occasionally with a question or two.

Meanwhile Red Dorfman prospered in Chicago. Why not? According to at least one federal report he . was close to the Al Capone mob. And a liaison between and a stand was a stand of the st it and some old-time labor people and political circles. Red was an effective money-raiser for the powers that were, locally and nationally.

Red Dorfman was accepted and wooed. During the 1951 AFL San Francisco convention he was lionized in the posh Fairmount Hotel. He was the harbinger of a new day and new character who had just become a Teamsters vice president -- James Riddle Hoffa. One evening Dorfman got a little rough in one corridor encounter with someone who didn't happen to know Jimmy at the time but had reflected on his muscle days in Detroit, Minneapolis, and a foray into Miami.

"Jimmy's my buddy, my partner," Dorfman said truculently.

This was followed by a swift one-two query: "Do you think we're bums?"

Affirmative. But since the Fairmount was a busy hotel, and deservedly prestigious, Dorfman didn't swing, he just pushed, grunting, "No one can say that about my partner Jimmy."

There was what Karl Marx called an economic determinism co-mingled with this fraternal bond. Hoffa was rising swiftly. Soon he was able to put Allen Dorfman virtually in charge of overseeing multi-million-dollar loans from the big Central States pension fund, (now totalling about $1.4 billion) and now the most heavily investigated target in government law agencies.

Dorfman also was close to some of the tough syndicate men in the East -- namely the so-called Luchese (Three Fingers Brown) Mafia crowd.

This mob co-mingled with the racket crowd in the strategic trucking industry -- which will soon be exposed by Bill Aronwald, chief of the Justice Department anti--organized crime strike force in New York's southern district. The grand jury is about to hand down more indictments.

But back to Paul Dorfman, whom Jack Ruby always feared. Dorfman used to work out of the Hampshire House on New York's Central Park South. Nothing small or miserly about Red. He was big-time even after the AFL-CIO lifted his charter in 1957 and turned the field over to one of its big affiliates. Dorfman sure had power across the Northeast and Midwest states. What the congressional committee can do even at this late date is to Inside Labor - dig into that power. If we're going back to 1963 and Jack Ruby, this might be the choice chance to shovel into long-buried channels -- used by some of the nation's most powerful combines.

Allen Dorfman, still of Chicago, was convicted in 1972 for taking finder's fee kickbacks in the winning of loans from the big Central States fund.

There's all that money in the central pension fund -- and yet the congressional subcommittee is wasting time in futile digging into Jack Ruby, the police "go-for." Meaning he would bring in coffee and delicatessen sandwiches. Ruby wasn't involved in any "cut out" part of an assassination plot. He had just come in from the Western Union telegraph office that traumatic afternoon.

Had he remained a few minutes longer or arrived earlier he'd have seen Oswald's backside going into the police car. Instead, Ruby milled around down in the police garage ramp bottom. He shot spontaneously -out of religious fervor thinking himself an avenging "angel" with flaming bullet.

It's Ruby's Chicago connections, many of them dead no doubt, which would give this nation a fascinating Inside Labor - )0/14/75 x x x fasci ting Page 6 glimpse into an era which has been so romantically covered by the movies. One more thought: if that Chicago political machine had not been so powerful in 1960 -- and if Dick Nixon had won a few more Midwestern electoral votes -- history would have been different for the tragic Kennedys.

No information pertaining to any such "tickler" or notation ever being placed on the Chicago Police Department files pertaining to this matter is known to FBI Headquarters or the Chicago Field Office.

Director McGuire was advised that the FBI had Gaused Chicago Police Department records to be checked on November 27, 1963, regarding John Martin, Jack Ruby (and Rubenstein), and the murder of Leon Cooke; and no record had been found identifiable with any of them. He stated the reason a record check regarding Martin was negative on November 27, 1963, was that Martin was not arrested and therefore would not have been indexed. Ruby (Rubenstein) and Cooke would not have been indexed since names of witnesses and victims were not indexed in 1939.
