Many forecasters rain on country's parades

You don't need a local forecaster to know which way the wind blows, most Americans say. Of 1,356 adults, 40% say they often make decisions based on weather forecasts that don't come true, according to a new Harris Poll. And 15% say they go along in the process much because they're made plausible or sensible, more credid TV weather mavens for being real weather experts.

Experience and attitude about weather forecasts might depend on where you're from. Respondents in the South are more likely to feel them unreliable and to make plans based on wrong forecasts. Both Midwesterners and Easterners are most likely to have often steamed recently over an inaccurate forecast. And those in California? Well, they're much less likely to be upset by wrong forecasts than those in other regions.

The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 3%.

BUMMED: Paula Poundstone, whose comedy show was axed by ABC last week after only two outings, is understandably licking her wounds. "I hurt," she says, for a variety of reasons. Sheer ego is one — Friday was fairly public. "Poundstone said she's not writing again, and she's not doing stand-up again," says her agent, Lee Harvey. "She's been canceled." Her agent adds, "She's been canceled." The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 3%.

The real Oswald, and a pale imitation

By this time next week, even the most ardent Kennedy-defender will probably have said enough to the TV viewing frenzy marking the 30th anniversary of JFK's assassination.

In prime time, two-hour CBS specials by Tracey Wong Briggs, Helen Bonham Carter and Lee Harvey Oswald come from

ET/PT. An earlier, nine-hour film, "The Assassination of John F. Kennedy," will be shown at 8 p.m. on NBC.

Best known for the hit thriller "A Room With a View" and "Brooklyn's Finest," Bonham Carter

lets out, away from cameras and book a crash course on the Dallas shooting before airing on NBC's Fatal De- scription. Mrs. Lee Harvey

Oswald (as well as ET/PT) is a pale imitation of the evidence of

Marina, nor is it a pale imitation of

Lee Harvey Oswald, as best known for the international terrorist and his killing of President John F. Kennedy.
