CIA/ Oswald Mexican intercepts/Post's 3rd-day coverage HW 11/28/76

Buried inside the Metro section is the brief attached (in Fost file) story that is an even less adequate repor on the "hillips testimony that was on radio news last might. About midnight WEX WAVA's account had Phillips voice as he left the committee room. He said what one would expect, of no consequence, and refused to say what he had testified to om the sparious claim that he knew for his to say a single Would be in clear violation of law in the sense of a specific law. There is some, of course. This is no more than another device for building the story, for creating more interest in the following of that spoor. As the story shows the committee has already sent investigne tors to "exico to interview the translator and a typist. (Long assignments?)

(I suppose what no story indicates can be true, that Cawald spoke in Russian. Without this why a translator?)

That the committee would have to run off on this without having established any of the basic facts of the case was inevitable. Once the story was out it would have been criticised for not following it up. When it is hardly best prepared to. This means that what would have come out at some point and is a serious reflection on the GIA will be looked into when the possibilities of developing the entire story are poorest. It premague a duplication of the Schweiker runaround.

I think these developments completely validate sy pront recommendation that the very first thing the counittee do, without any investigation of having its staff in more than the most skeletal form, be the taking of the most basic testimony about the howicide itself. This, also agreed to by Sprague, has not been done. And in both creas the consistee is hard-running on the peripheria before it can organize and consease serious work.

The point is my yesterday morning's letter to Bush about Phillips' oath seems to have been well taken and within two consciouness of the GLA, which this story says "reminded" Phillips of that eath. The meed mean no more than that the GLA is going through the motions of pretending detachment. If it prosecutes there will be meaning. He did violate what it classifies as mational-security precautions and meeds.

If consent on the Post's downplay of the first-page scoop it broke can vary with beliaf, even be attributed to different Sunday editors (from weekday), by zormal standards most papers would be touting thermolyen in having beater Congressional investigators to a story and boasting to their readers that this is how well the paper serves thes. Five and a half column inches to report this, Phillips' testimony, the CIA's alleged warning to him and the expedition of the Congressional investigators is very little, especially when compared with the stock stuff in the large Sunday edition so little of which, however, is hard news. Putting national news in the Herro section is a further downplay. Atypical.

One could postulate that something worthy of news attention would be fad to get the consistee on the wrongtrack. A puff story could not do this.

What can a thorough and successful investigation show? More of what is now ho-hum, that the agencies did less well than they could and should have. Nothing about the crime. More of the inconsequential Schweiker, more of the supposed defense of the Consistive. This could not be ignored with "swald the sole official nomines for assassim, as it could not under any circumstances because if he was not the assassim he was a patay. At best it duplicates the leaking of the non-story of the Hosty letter and his destruction of it. This is not new. It has been reported. There will now be no basis for prosecuting anyone who claims little or no clear recollection, no basis for doing anything if there is the almost certain disagreenent on details as in the Hosty case, and who now cares is Helms and his no longer in honchos were bad, had boys? It means nothing but can help the conmittee's life.
