

(KENNEDY ASSASSINATION)

WASHINGTON--ACTING ATTY. GEN. RAMSAY CLARK TODAY ORDERED ALL EVIDENCE CONSIDERED BY THE WARREN COMMISSION IN ITS INVESTIGATION OF THE ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT KENNEDY PRESERVED PERMANENTLY IN THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES.

THE HUNDREDS OF ITEMS INCLUDED THE HIGH-POWERED 6.55 MANNLICHER-CARCANO RIFLE WITH THE TELESCOPIC SIGHT WHICH THE COMMISSION SAID WAS USED BY LEE HARVEY OSWALD TO SLAY KENNEDY.

CLARK'S DECISION CAME AFTER A RASH OF BOOKS AND MAGAZINE ARTICLES QUESTIONED THE FINDINGS OF THE WARREN COMMISSION THAT OSWALD, LATER SLAIN IN A DALLAS JAIL BY JACK RUBY, ACTED ALONE IN THE SHOOTING NOV. 22, 1963.

CLARK ACTED UNDER A 1965 LAW WHICH GAVE HIM AUTHORITY TO DECIDE WHICH ARTICLES SHOULD BE PRESERVED IN THE ARCHIVES.

CLARK DECIDED TO SAVE EVERYTHING IN ORDER TO "ASSURE THE AVAILABILITY, BOTH NOW AND IN THE FUTURE, OF THE EVIDENCE CONCERNING THE ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT KENNEDY."

IN ADDITION TO ALL ITEMS NOW OWNED BY THE GOVERNMENT, CLARK IDENTIFIED HUNDREDS OF OTHER BITS OF EVIDENCE BEING HELD BY THE FBI.

AN FBI SPOKESMAN SAID THAT ALL OF ITS EVIDENCE HAD BEEN CONSIDERED BY THE COMMISSION.

AMONG THE ITEMS WHICH WILL GO TO THE ARCHIVES ARE OSWALD'S SHARPSHOOTERS MEDAL HE WON IN THE MARINES; HIS BOOKS AND BOOKLETS, MANY OF THEM DEALING WITH RUSSIA OR CUBA; LETTERS FROM VARIOUS PEOPLE TO OSWALD INCLUDING ONE FROM JOHN CONNALLY, PRESUMABLY THE TEXAS GOVERNOR WHO WAS RIDING WITH KENNEDY AT THE TIME OF KENNEDY'S DEATH; OSWALD'S UNDESIRABLE DISCHARGE FROM THE MARINE CORPS; HIS WALLET; HIS BIRTH CERTIFICATE AND THE BIRTH CERTIFICATE OF THE OSWALDS' 4-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER, AND VARIOUS PHOTOGRAPHS BY OSWALD.

Justice Dept. Takes Control Of Warren Report Evidence

The government today made sure that any future study—official or private—of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will have the use of all the evidence used by the Warren Commission.

Acting Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark today issued an order that claims government ownership of "all Warren Commission evidence."

Under his order, this evidence "will be preserved intact and deposited permanently in the National Archives," Ramsey said in a statement.

It was not immediately clear whether this action will have any effect, now or later, on the growing controversy over the Warren Commission's work and its conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, shot President Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

A number of critics of the Warren Report have contended that the commission's conclusion was based either on inadequate study of the evidence or, in some cases, the failure even to consider some materials that might bear on the assassination.

Several books published by critics of the commission have sought to raise doubt about whether the Warren Report be reopened, either by an official government body or by a private study group.

Richard N. Goodwin, a former aide to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, has been among those urging another official review.

Today's order by Clark was a result of a law passed by Congress last year assigning the attorney general the job of deciding which items of evidence of the assassination should be preserved and which the government should take over as its own.

Clark's order has the effect of claiming government title to everything used by the Warren Commission. Some of this evidence is now owned by the government, while ownership of other evidence is unclear or in dispute.

Both types of evidence now will become government property and will be deposited permanently in the National Archives under various forms of availability to the public.

Clark said the availability both now and in the future, of evidence concerning the assassination of President Kennedy.

It was understood that this statement about "availability" of the evidence did not mean that commission evidence now withheld would be immediately released for public inspection.

However, the order will preserve those reports.

Critics of the Commission's conclusion about Oswald and his supposed solitary act in killing the President have cited the FBI reports among the evidence that they believe should be made available for public study to determine the validity of the commission's conclusions.

Other items that critics have said are important in any analysis of the Commission's report are photos and X-rays made of President Kennedy's body during an autopsy to determine definitely the cause of death.

The autopsy photos and the X-rays apparently were not considered by the Warren Commission. This evidence apparently is not now considered a part of the Commission evidence that is to be preserved under today's order.

Both the autopsy evidence and the FBI reports have been considered critical evidence by those who challenge the Warren Report's conclusion that Oswald was not a part of a large conspiracy.

The Warren Commission, in determining that Oswald acted alone, had concluded that Oswald fired all of the shots that first wounded and then killed Mr. Kennedy and that wounded bullet theory. This theory holds that a single bullet apparently passed through the President's body and wounded Connally. If this theory is wrong, critics have said, it would have taken more shots than Oswald could have fired, and this would suggest the participation of more than one person with a gun.
