Whites Dominating Panther

By DOUGLAS ROBINSON
"What are you whiteys doing here—this is a trial for black people," shouted an angry black woman yesterday at a grown.

White support for the Panhers, adding that the Panthers, too, were against the Panthers, too, were against the Vietnam war.

There are seen to the Panhers and of Capt. Robert Fauer-bach.

Every spectator and news-man is searched by the Panhers are seen to the Panhers."

There are seen to the Panhers are seen to the Panhe people," shouted an angry black woman yesterday at a group of white students filing from the courtroom where pretrial hearings for 13 Black Panthers are being held.

There are seats for 77 spectithe courtroom, a careful, thortators in Room 1536, Part 38, ough search that includes the Criminal Division of amination of every pocket item. Women are searched by materials the courtroom, who also go through their are being held.

had just been sentenced to 30 spectator section by a wooden days for contempt of court, railing leading to the courtwell reserved for members of the delooked baffled and embarand the judges' bench sit about

In a voice that might well Ranged about the wood-pan-point at their fathers or cut sheet steel at 10 paces, the eled walls and the defendant's brothers when they enter. In a voice that might well Ranged about the wood-pan-hearing but not looking at her. As they entered elevators and vanished, the woman, her anger spent, subsided into hostilesounding mutters.

The woman, who was accompanied by an elderly man, was unhappy because she could not get into the hearing. All the seats had been taken by whites.

The incident, which perhaps illustrates the tenuous alliance between black militants and radical whites, also served to point up the slowly changing character of the spectator sec-tion at the Black Panther hearings.

Whites Growing in Number

Since the hearings began on Feb. 2, the audiences have been predominantly black with ealy a sprinkling of whites. This week, however, the number of whites has grown while black ranks have thinned.

Yesterday, for the first time, there were far more whites, in this case students from City College, Hunter College and a few high schools, than blacks.

The outpouring of whites was a reaction to the conviction of five white antiwar militants in the so-called Chicago 7 trial, a City College student ex-plained. "We wanted to show

The students, one of whom Street. At the front of the The two fad just been sentenced to 30 20 news representatives.

woman continued to berate the table is a 37-man detail of blue-youngsters, saying: "You radi-uniformed Supreme Court officals will be the Establishment cers who are charged with in 20 years." The students walked by her, curity. They are under the com-

3.42.19

The two front rows on the are young children who silently

The spectators are, by and large, made up of sympathizers, although a few perennial courtroom buffs are always in attendance. Those who look as though they might be hostile to the defendants or the specta-tors are carefully weeded out in the corridor.
"It's not hard to spot a longshoreman," said Captain Fauerbach.

1 . 4

Ever since the 30-day sentence for contempt handed out by Justice John M. Murtagh to a white woman during the first week of hearings, the black spectators have grown quieter with each passing day. No longer do they shout "All power to the people" in response to the defendant. sponse to the defendants shouts when the defendants enter the court.

The hostility, however, is still there. Convinced that a Black Panther cannot receive a fair trial, the Panthers have taken their anger to the corridor. The black court officers, of whom there are about 15, get the brunt of the attack.
"Tell me, why do you take sides, brother?," a young black woman asked a black court officer as she left court re-cently. She smiled pleasantly as she spoke. "I don't take sides, sister, he replied just as pleasantly. "I'm here to keep order."

The woman's face hardened. "You're a pig," she snarled.