

These additions I think from the few handwritten notes I was able to make.
Joel said that as his last information Jack Youngblood of the book was at Rancho Santa Rosa, Ashdown, Ark. He thinks he is still there. It is obvious that ascertaining whether he was the Youngblood of the Nancy testimony would have been a simple matter.
Youngblood is not mentioned in Nancy's dispositions. From this it seems the government had no reason to suspect she would use his name. He is satisfied the Dallas Youngblood is the right one, for no other reason that he offered.
His phone conversation with Nancy was 9-16-68. Her new husband is named Hamilton. He raises (raises?) horses. Rich told him that Nancy was a government agent. He acknowledges Rich's probable source was Nancy. I asked him what her function could be and he said baby sitter. I asked for whom? Perrin. For what? Apparently for the assassination so far in the future.
The FBI got and kept all the medical records that were not disposed of (originals, that is, they attribute significance to what they regard as the delay in signing the autopsy reports, however, he acknowledges this seems to have been done within two days and that the lab work is included in it.
I got no meaningful explanation of the German calls that seem to figure so importantly in their case so, Jim's thinking.
The Branner telegram was from Manuel Santos 1-5-61. Joel said it was a boy of Pigg offer. Branner says he knows nothing about this. It did originate in Dallas.
These may not have the obvious meaning: Child - no record in Dallas but in D.C.;
No checking on 11-1-61.
Placing her in Texas time of assassination.
"Evidence she had an abortion here, too".
Several something during "attempts" including after or on 1-64.
Hamilton has money. Her husband was didn't.
Agreed pictures point to walking man only.
