Dear Mr. Weisberg:

Thank you for sending the copy of FRAME-UP I ordered from you so promptly. I'm well into it now, and I believe it's your most readable book, stylistically speaking. I got a real kick out of that little bit of intelligence about the character 'Eric Starvos' appearing in Eerie comics; it's much more likely that Ray was reading Eerie than Atlas Shrugged, unless he's a closet intellectual.

I found the interviews with the 'veteran' critics in the new issue of Clandestine America quite unsettling and depressing. It would seem Blakey, Stokes and Preyer have managed to lull them all into varying degrees of slumber, with the exception of yourself. You came through magnificently, especially in pointing out the impossibility of the "holes" in the shirt collar and tie having been caused by a bullet, even a magic one. Baden's performance was nothing short of amazing. You alone had the courage to call a cover-up a cover-up. The lip service paid to the Committee's "experts" by the other "critics" was really astounding. I just wanted to thank you for standing up and saying the things that needed to be said. It's too bad it won't reach a wider audience.

Sincere regards,

J.W. Burke, Jr.
