5/21/69

Dear Paul,

Tonight I had a chance to gaince at your 10/14/67 memo on the Butler-Oswald record and I was reminded of the enclosures with the records when you sent them and of a recent copy of "Viglage Square" Gery sent. In going over all of this at one time is became clear that the assessination made both Butler and INCA. They were nothing, a failure and out of money when the Fresident was murdered. At that point they began an enormous connercialization of the assessination as a Communist plot- had they been in Dalles they might have prevented it, etc. and in less than three weeks that had a slick-paper house organ and began real activity. I haver come to the conclusion no one commercialized the assessination as completely - or as well - as Butler.

In the course of scanning this crep hurriedly I became impressed with some of Butler's techniques. He is as unscrupulous as any man I've even met. Now he calls himself a "conflict m nager" and it seems this is his representation of what he does. He is a "professional" and say so, without false modesty. This station he no doubt earned in his various dropout careers, having earned his professional degree by multiple dropping out. Or, he got his post graduate standing in either the John Birch Society or as a male model. He is a professional, no doubt.

I can cliem no expertise in the terminology of professional propagandists, but I am inclined to doubt that they call themselves "conflict managers". I had never earlier heard the phrase. However, it is the kind of thing Butler would sieze upon, and I think he did. My first acquaintance with it comes from my old and dear friend Carlos Bringuier who used it in an INCA speech 11/19/63. And I think Butler lifted it, liking it. It is certainly is a field where there are few to claim the title non-existent. If any of you people ever find any use of such a term ("professionally") I'd like to know about it. Gr, if in the school you can find out whether it exists, I'd like to know.

If you have a copy of "Oswald Speaks" I'd like to read it, for again, I am looking for the evidence of the c maercializing. Some day I will use it.

Butler's recent piece in "Village Square" in his "debate" with LHO is not original. It seems that although he was paid by INCA he copyrighted his articles in the house organ. That one was in the "preview edition". There he sliphed and used the identification of "members of INCA" as those who "suggested" that if there had been an INCA in D llas the tragedy might have been averted. So, it is clear to me that he invented this. anyway, the Village Square had an unoriginal piece.

Issue 2:1 of "Victory" has much on Juanita Cestro. It seems she was shepherded by a trio led by one Salvador Lew and including Augustin Alles (both of something celled " Agencia de Informaciones Periodisticas" and a guy from "Bohemia". Lew in particular has "Agency" written on him, so I wonder...

Best regards,
