

1941. Gary was re-elected from 11/14/89

My search of the word "counterproductive" led me to the definition "having the opposite effect of what is intended".
I see that in the case of the "Citizens for Peace Without Surrender", the effect of the word "counterproductive" is to make the organization appear to be a "counterproductive" organization.

The word "counterproductive" is a very common word and is often used to describe a situation where the result of an action is the opposite of what was intended. In the case of the "Citizens for Peace Without Surrender", the word "counterproductive" is used to describe the organization's actions as being counterproductive to the goal of peace.

The word "counterproductive" is a very common word and is often used to describe a situation where the result of an action is the opposite of what was intended. In the case of the "Citizens for Peace Without Surrender", the word "counterproductive"
is used to describe the organization's actions as being
counterproductive to the goal of peace.

The word "counterproductive" is a very common word and is often used to describe a situation where the result of an action is the opposite of what was intended. In the case of the "Citizens for Peace Without Surrender", the word "counterproductive"
is used to describe the organization's actions as being
counterproductive to the goal of peace.

The word "counterproductive" is a very common word and is often used to describe a situation where the result of an action is the opposite of what was intended. In the case of the "Citizens for Peace Without Surrender", the word "counterproductive"
is used to describe the organization's actions as being
counterproductive to the goal of peace.